

Email Outline:

Subject: Connecting Students to Podiatric Medicine

My name is _____, and I am a current podiatric medical student at _____. I understand that as a pre-health organization, there are many health professions that you help guide students toward. One that we hope you share with students is the field of Podiatric Medicine and Surgery.

Training to become a Doctor of Podiatric Medicine (DPM) mirrors the MD/DO education and is composed of 4 years of didactic and clinical training followed by a 3 year foot and ankle medical and surgical residency. Podiatric medicine offers a direct path to surgical practice, combining specialized medical training, early hands-on experience, and a focus on restoring mobility and improving lives. It is a great option for students who are passionate about surgery and are looking to receive specialized medical training from day 1 of their graduate-level education.

With early surgical training, a clear path to specialization, and strong support from faculty and peers, it's a high-impact career with real work-life balance. I encourage you to share discoverpodiatry.org with any students who are interested in surgery, sports medicine, trauma care, or public health.

I am happy to answer any questions you have about the field of Podiatric Medicine, and we hope that you share the benefits that this field can provide with your students.